Welcome

Dear Chamber Members:

Your Chamber enthusiastically encourages Rowan Chamber members to “Buy Local.” To make it a bit simpler, we present you with the Chamber’s 2024 Membership Directory and Talent Attraction Guide.

The 2024 Directory is a cross-referenced listing of the Chamber’s 800 member companies, organized into three main sections:

- Talent Attraction Guide
- Alphabetical list of members
- Business Category list of members

The Talent Attraction Guide welcomes newcomers and businesses to our community. We thank all of our advertisers in this publication for supporting our efforts to promote our local business community.

As you may already know, the Chamber has contracted with the Salisbury Post for the production of our Directory. We are grateful to each of you who have worked with them over the last several months to ensure the timely production and distribution of this publication.

By partnering with other Chamber members, you can rest assured that you are doing business with companies that care about investing in the future of our entire region.

I am confident you will realize significant value from the return on your membership investment in the upcoming year.

We appreciate your membership!

Sincerely,

Terry Osborne

ROWAN CHAMBER

Chamber of Commerce

Be an original.

The Rowan Chamber of Commerce is a private not-for-profit business advocacy organization. The Chamber has an active Board of Directors, volunteers, and staff to assist the business community. It was started in 1925 and has accomplished a great deal in its nearly 100-year history. Significant accomplishments include Yadkin River Bridge; I-85 improvements and utility connections; Mid-Carolina Airport expansion; and the development of the Paul E. Fisher Gateway Building.

The Chamber has over 800 members, representing nearly 20,000 employees in Rowan County and the surrounding area. Benefits include business advocacy, workforce development/talent attraction, community development, professional development, membership directory, relocation packets, brochure racks, ribbon cuttings, networking programs, business referrals, exposure for member firms and much more.

Some of the more popular programs are: Leadership Rowan, Power in Partnership breakfast meetings, Business After Hours mixers, Ambassadors, Candidate Forums, Washington, D.C. trip; Raleigh trips; Women in Business, Minority Business Council, Young Professional, Annual Meeting and Dragon Boat Festival.

Rowan Center for Innovation and Entrepreneurship is looking to STRENGTHEN BUSINESSES

By Brad Dountz

For years, Rowan County has thought of bringing in a "center of innovation and entrepreneurship" to the area where new business owners can interact, collaborate and co-exist under one roof. After several delays and stalled talks, Spencer town officials are going to be the ones that will finally help usher in the Rowan Center for Innovation and Entrepreneurship.

The Rowan Chamber of Commerce along with the Rowan IDEA Center had previously looked at multiple locations throughout Rowan County but plans were halted due to the pandemic. It wasn't until a year and a half ago when Spencer reached out about hosting the center.

"Our reason was that for quite a while we had seen a lot of businesses, small businesses especially, kind of come and go and not be successful in town. So we were experiencing quite a bit of vacant storefronts, vacant retail spaces and we collectively as a board and staff said, 'Wouldn't be nice if we could find a way to promote this type of small business development and fill some of these vacant storefronts and buildings in town?'" Spencer Mayor Jonathan Williams said. "We're really excited to be able to bring that concept to the Rowan County community."

"We are so excited about the new focus on entrepreneurial development," said Chamber President Elaine Spalding. She and Rowan IDEA Center business leaders have met with Spencer officials to launch the program. At first, Spencer didn't fit with what the larger chains wanted; it didn't have a great enough population and was too close to municipalities with similar amenities. Still, residents had a desire for more local businesses to return to Spencer.

"What we realized was we're really going to have to grow our own and in order to grow our own we really need a center for innovation and entrepreneurship, basically a business incubator," Williams said.

The Rowan Center for Innovation and Entrepreneurship will be a 501(c)(3) nonprofit that is going to provide entrepreneurs educational seminars, co-working space, common space, a retail lab, and even a commercial kitchen for those in the food service industry. The business incubator is going to have courses and lessons on business, marketing, financial, and accounting skills. Some members will utilize the center to prepare them in opening a separate brick and mortar store of their own.

"So when they take that next step, which a lot of times it can be a major financial risk to them, they feel comfortable in doing that, that they know how to do that," Williams said.

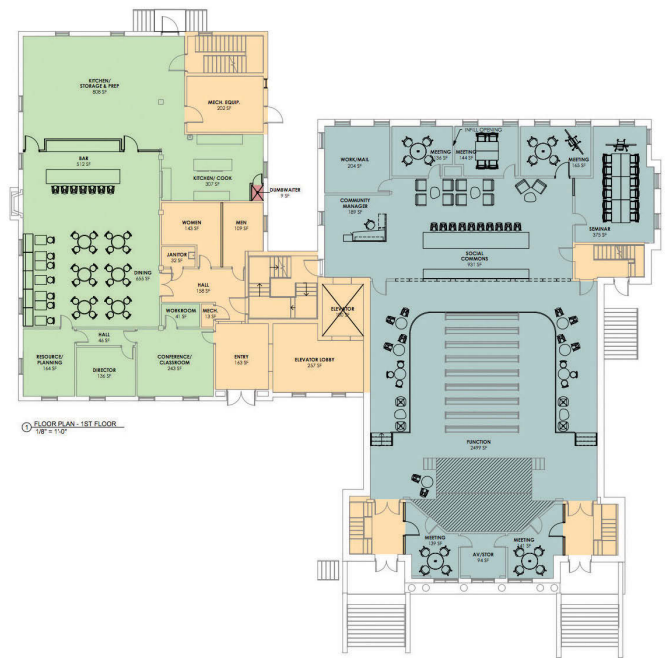

Another component that should add to the center's appeal is that it will supply on-site child care needs for members.

"We think that's going to be one of the things that really helps sell this location," Williams said.

Spencer have met with local organizations to get their perspective on what the center should be like and worked on convincing all parties that they were the ideal town to host the center.

"Spencer is absolutely the right place because I think first of all, we are the prototypical, the poster child of why communities need these type of business incubators and how they can be so successful because I think we stand to benefit as much as anybody else from the success of this center. The other thing is Spencer is a very walkable community, which for these type of facilities is important and it's in generally close proximity to a whole lot of other municipalities," Williams said.

Spencer originally thought of putting the center in the vacant retail space at the Park Plaza shopping center where their town hall is located, but it was too small. It turns out the person who recently purchased the old Spencer First Baptist Church on Fifth Street was supportive of the center and offered the 28,000 square foot space to house it. The center is looking to have 150 members stay there for roughly a year each depending on where they are with their business.

Spencer is partnering with FlyWheel, a Winston-Salem company who has "perfected" this type of business space according to Williams. FlyWheel helped build one in Concord from a converted bank, which Williams toured to get an idea of what Rowan County's could be like. FlyWheel's mission is to map the vision for the Rowan Center for Innovation and Entrepreneurship, but they won't run the facility, just help with programming.

Williams says the biggest challenge they are facing is finding the $6-6.5 million to renovate the old church. Williams expects to reach out to philanthropists for private funding, apply for grants, and take advantage of the historical tax credits for the property in question.

Over the next year, the main focuses for the center are going to be on funding, planning, logistics, and getting agreements signed. Construction is to begin in a year with the hopes of it being operational by late 2025 or early 2026. FlyWheel is currently working on renderings of the inside of the church and floor plans.

Williams will also participate in speaking to the public and organizations to share the center's goals with them and to find out what they think about it. Williams says one of the biggest complaints is that the center is not in downtown Salisbury. When looking at the bigger picture of what the Rowan Center for Innovation and Entrepreneurship could do for the county and other parts of North Carolina, Williams tosses aside those criticisms to emphasize its potential.

"We try to reiterate that it's not a Spencer thing, it's a Rowan County-wide and really even beyond that, more of a regional facility that just happens to be in Spencer," Williams said. "Our goal is through this, we find the next Food Lion. We develop the next generation of small businesses that grow into something much, much bigger that we can look back on years down the road and say, 'They were born in Rowan County.'" ●

NORTH ROWAN Connector Project

By Robert Sullivan

The Rowan Chamber, East Spencer, Spencer and Rowan County government leaders are all working together on a new “North Rowan Connector” project. The proposed I-85 interchange in East Spencer is just the tip of the iceberg in development coming to Northern Rowan County.

The new interchange will be located in between exits 76 and 79, where Correll Street and McCanless Road connect and pass under the interstate. Officials view the area as the perfect target for increasing avenues for development as well as providing better access to High Rock Lake.

“It will help East Spencer by giving us another area for existing industrial and for future development. We also want to be able to bring in some retail development. If you look at where we’re at now, a lot of it has been industrial, and we think with the corridor, we’ll be able to have hotels, big retail areas and restaurants,” said East Spencer Mayor Barbara Mallett.

Rowan County Board of Commissioners Chairman Greg Edds has also said throughout the process that the county wants an interchange in the area to help East Spencer, Spencer, High Rock Lake and Dan Nicholas Park, two of the largest attractions in the county.

The Chamber’s Priority Project has listed the North I-85 exit as its major new transportation project since 2019. Business and government leaders have been continuously advocating for funding at the state and federal government levels. Spencer is also working on a Yadkin River development and greenway trails that will lead from Spencer, East Spencer and Salisbury.

The Rowan EDC has been assisting with the development around exit 79 as something the government of East Spencer can hang their hats on. There, development on the area known as the Rusher property is being led by Tectonic Development. “We’ve been working together on the Rusher development since 2017. We are proud of where we are now, which is really a great and wonderful place,” said Mallett.

In May 2023, the East Spencer Board of Aldermen approved a tax incentive for Tectonic, who proposed constructing two buildings for warehouse and office space. One of the buildings is expected to end up with a massive footprint of 451,890 square feet, which includes 115 trailer stalls, 350 auto stalls and 36-foot clear height. The second building is a planned 162,240 square feet and will offer 50 trailer stalls, 180 auto stalls and 32-foot clear height, according to the Rowan County EDC.

“For the most part, people here are eager for growth. East Spencer has been neglected for the last 50 years and has not had the opportunity for growth. But we are changing the look of the town and the growth is coming,” said East Spencer Town Manager Michael Douglas when the incentive was approved.

The developers of the Rusher property petitioned for voluntary annexation with the town of East Spencer. Between them and a recent housing development, Mallett said the fact that property developers were willingly joining the town spoke volumes about the direction they are heading. “I think we’re doing something right. We are being honest and frugal. Our financial status and our board are stable and people can see that and they appreciate that,” said Mallett. ●

Rowan County Chamber on verge of Dragon Boat Festival MILESTONE

By Karen Kistler

The Rowan Chamber of Commerce has successfully navigated the waters and worked to make the annual Dragon Boat Festival a success since 2014.

The event has grown from 16 teams its first year to 31 teams in 2023. The 10th Annual Dragon Boat Festival will be held on Sat., July, 27, 2024, at the Shrine Club on High Rock Lake. It features a competitive team building Dragon Boat race, drummer parade, local food trucks and craft beer.

"The event has grown exponentially, with 31 teams, 25 sponsors, 15 vendors, 100 volunteers and 5,000 attendees," said Daniel Matangira, who serves as chairman of the Dragon Boat Festival committee.

The event encourages the community to "Buy Local" and raises funds for the Chamber's small business programs and services, said Joyce Caron-Mercier, who serves as a festival coordinator, and can be seen doing all kinds of jobs wherever needed.

The Chamber's membership committee developed the idea after looking for a unique summer-time activity which would focus attention on High Rock Lake and its economic impact on the community.

While High Rock Lake is a popular for fishing tournaments and boating recreation, Matangira noted that the festival "has proven to be the largest annual event on the lake itself."

Vendors like New Sarum Brewery, Cheerwine, Food Lion, local food trucks, shaved ice and other small businesses are set up at the event. Several ethnic and healthy food options are available for the paddlers and encourages them to stay hydrated during the race day.

During the noon time break in racing, the Chamber presents the Novant Health Workplace Wellness Award, conducts a drummer parade, "Heads and Tails" game, dance off competition and other fun activities for the participants to enjoy.

At the end of the day, teams are awarded Olympic style medals in either gold, silver or bronze. Teams from F & M Bank, Novant Health, Trinity Oaks, Food Lion, Daimler, Power Curbers and others have all competed for medals. The Dragon Boat Festival provides family fun and team-building opportunities, working together and camaraderie.

A great example of that team building spirit is witnessed during the day, when business executives are meeting new employees and their family members. Long-term employees can coach new employees as they are paddling together in the boat.

"It's so beautiful to see somebody who has just been with the company one month earlier, high-fiving a CEO and hugging and cheering after a win or loss, because people just love the atmosphere for bonding and team building," Matangira said.

Each boat includes a team of 20 paddlers and one drummer and are required to have at least eight women on the boat, with each team member playing a different role, Matangira noted. Pan Am provides the steers person, navigating the direction of the boat. The drummer keeps time with the lead paddlers and everyone should be in sync with them. Those in the middle of the boat serve as the "engine room, that's where all the muscle is," Matangira said.

"The team has to work as one," said Glen Heilig, who serves as captain of the Gator Bites team, which is sponsored by Matangira and Cardinal Tire. He continued, "There's a learning curve to paddling. The team has to work together, you have to be a cohesive unit. And everybody has to be at the same speed. You are much more effective working together than you are if you just have a group of tremendous athletes who are not working together as one unit."

While winning is not the top priority in the races, both Matangira and Heilig said there is some fun competitiveness that comes into play when you are out there racing.

“Well, it’s always more fun when you are winning,” Heilig said with a laugh, “but the fun part is the competitiveness of that particular event.” He continued, “While some teams are more competitive than others, everyone is a good sport about it. It’s just a really good community team building event.”

Caron-Mercier said that volunteers are always in need, especially for boat wranglers. Boat wranglers help the teams in and out of the boats, they need to wear water shoes and help launch the boats from the beach area. This is the biggest need, she shared.

Matangira thanked all the Dragon Boat committee members, volunteers, sponsors, teams, vendors and the Shrine Club for letting us use their facility. He especially thanked the Chamber staff for all the hard work they do to prepare for each year’s event.

Matangira said, “The Dragon Boat Festival is a great event that celebrates our local businesses, community volunteers and is a fun day on High Rock Lake. It has a huge economic impact on the area and it’s going to get bigger and better.” ●

Minority Business TRADE SHOW

The Rowan Chamber's Minority Business Council invites you to their second annual Minority Business Trade Show on April 25 at Livingstone Hospitality Center.

The goal of the event is to encourage major employers to increase the percentage of business they do with minority owned firms.

The Minority Business Council was organized in 2016 by a great group of local minority business leaders. Elia Gegorek (Gegorek & Associates Realty) is the chair of the Council. The goal of the Council is to help minority businesses grow and prosper. The Rowan Chamber coordinates meetings, webinars, and networking events. The City of Salisbury is a co-sponsor of the program. Rowan-Cabarrus Community College's Small Business Center, Livingstone College, Catawba College and Hood Theological Seminary also provide volunteer support.

The 2024 Action Plan for the Minority Business Council includes:

- Monthly meetings on the Third Tuesday of Each Month at 9 a.m.
 - o Two Minutes to Promote Your Business
 - o Profile of a Successful Minority Business
 - o Expert Speakers: CPA, Attorney, Marketing exec's
- Produce a Minority Business Trade Show in Spring 2024
- Promote the RCCC Small Business Center's free counseling and seminars
- Launch an Angel Investment Fund for minority businesses
- Mentor minority students at RCCC, Livingstone, Catawba & Hood Theological Seminary who are interested in starting businesses
- Assist interested persons with Minority Supplier Development Certifications
- Promote City of Salisbury bid opportunities for minority business contracts
- Encourage major employees to increase their minority business vendors
- Produce a Minority Business Directory in conjunction with the Chamber's Annual Membership Directory (listing begins on page 22)

Physical therapists work with children to treat injuries, or disorders that affect their musculoskeletal function and development and determine specific goals for therapy. Individualized exercise and manual therapies are used to achieve those goals.

Occupational Therapy

Occupational therapists treat patients with conditions that affect social function and activities of daily living. Sensory integration, functional activities, and social skills training helps children develop the skills needed to thrive in school, home and play.

Speech & Feeding Therapy

Speech-language pathologists treat conditions and disorders that affect speech, communication, feeding, and swallowing. They help children with communication delays through development of oral motor skills and language comprehension.

ABA/Behavior Therapy

Applied Behavior Analysis, or ABA Therapy, is designed to help children on the Autism spectrum increase social behaviors and decrease challenging behaviors and barriers to learning.

Psychological Testing

We offer in-house psychological evaluations for children who have been diagnosed or are suspected to have Autism Spectrum Disorder.

Welcome to ROWAN COUNTY

~ the center of the Universe!

By Greg Rapp

One of the very best things about choosing a home in Rowan County is the sheer variety of choices: in architecture, neighborhood settings, and price points – there is something for everyone. From the heart of vibrant downtown living in loft apartments or condominiums, to single family homes around the countryside, Rowan County has got it! Choose from a stately vintage home in one of the 10-historic districts in the Salisbury, a small city with a thriving arts scene, a variety of restaurants and unique shopping, and two microbreweries. . . or opt for a bungalow in one of our walkable neighborhoods in any one of the charming small towns that emanate from the county seat, or find a small farmette with acreage ‘out in the county’. Yes, we have it all! Is waterfront living your dream? YES, we have it! Is a golf course community on your radar? Rowan County features some of the area’s best public and private courses! Whether you’re seeking a stately Victorian, or the complete flip side of that coin in a fixer-upper you can renovate to your specs – or if you’re looking for a newly constructed home – the options and advantages to choosing a home here are multifold.

Rowan County IS the center of the Universe! With metro areas such as Charlotte, Greensboro, and Winston-Salem just an hour’s drive away, you’re never far from big city culture and vibrancy ~ yet you get to enjoy the laid-back atmosphere (and less traffic!) that Rowan offers. AND. . . our housing price points (and taxes!) are notably less for the same house – quality, character, and construction – that you’ll find in these larger cities. Wanting to get away? The fabulous Blue Ridge Mountains are a 2-hour drive and the gorgeous Carolina coastline is just a 4-hour drive. A two-hour drive from Rowan County will also take you to the state capitol to the east in Raleigh, or hip Asheville to the west. All roads lead to Rowan County!

As we welcome you to Rowan County, North Carolina, the best advice we can offer is to encourage you to work with a locally based agent: one that lives, works, and participates in the community they serve. Your local agent will be able to give you the very best knowledge of the area and its lifestyle and housing options. There are several locally based real estate agencies that are members of the Rowan County Chamber of Commerce with decades of local experience. You’ll appreciate working with professionals who know and love Rowan County. ●

Salisbury Real Estate LLC is an award-winning, locally based agency with a 20-year experienced track record in the Rowan County area. Please let us know if we can help you any way: Greg Rapp Realtor® | Salisbury Real Estate LLC at (704) 213-6846 or GregRappRealtor@gmail.com.

Military talent attraction efforts find home in Rowan County

By Chandler Inions

Serving in the military helps individuals develop a wide array of skill sets applicable to civilian life, but sometimes that pipeline can be difficult to navigate. An event held in Salisbury in November worked to put veterans transitioning out of the service into purposeful employment.

Initially, the event was scheduled for March 2020, but like most functions that year, it was disrupted by the COVID-19 pandemic.

The Rowan Chamber of Commerce, Rowan EDC, NCWorks, Salisbury VA Health Care System, City of Salisbury, Rowan Tourism Development Authority, NC4ME, and other community partners worked together to bring that program back so people like Anika Myers could take advantage of what it had to offer.

Myers has been in the South Carolina National Guard for six years.

"I recently got back from a deployment in Arizona, so now I am wanting to transition back to civilian work," Myers said. The National Guard member obtained a bachelor's degree from the University of South Carolina in public health, and now she wants to find work in the healthcare industry.

"There were some positions I was interested in specifically, like the VA health care system," Myers said. "I went and chatted with them. There was (also) Carolina Caring, and they are supposed to be opening up an office in Fort Mill, which is where I am currently located."

Myers was among many veterans who traveled to Salisbury for the two-day networking opportunity.

The first leg of the event was called Beers & Careers. It was a welcome reception from 4-7 p.m., allowing guests to check in and receive welcome bags at the Paul E.

Fisher Gateway Building, followed by the opportunity to network with community partners and employers at New Sarum Brewery.

The following morning came the job fair at the Salisbury VA Health Care System's gymnasium, which featured approximately 40 employers.

"I did some networking primarily and gave out my resume to a few different vendors," Myers said.

If she was offered a job, Myers indicated that she would consider relocating.

"(Salisbury) is not too far from my family or my drilling location, which are my primary concerns," Myers said.

Myers said she was thankful for the weekend's opportunity as searching for jobs can feel like a lot.

"The amount of resources is almost overwhelming, but you have so many people dragging you in different directions that it is hard to focus," she said. "I get excited easily, so reining in my focus and going down one direction is important."

"Veterans have a lot of opportunities, and that is wonderful, but getting things catered to what my desires are is what I ultimately am after."

Dr. Andrea Baumer is the acting associate director at the Salisbury VA.

"We partnered with the chamber of commerce and the Rowan Economic Development Council and NC Works," Baumer said. "They used their contacts to reach out to our local employers and invite them to join this job fair and this military talent attraction event."

Baumer said that veterans are uniquely positioned to transition into the civilian workforce for a number of reasons.

"In my experience, veterans and military members learn so many diverse skills that can be replicated or easily transition to different fields," Baumer said. "That is one of the great things about the military."

"Teamwork and leadership to the technical skills they learn really translate well into the civil service."

Baumer has been with the Salisbury VA for two years.

"Our last event was in September, but it was just for the VA," Baumer said. "This is actually our first event in my time here in Salisbury where we are partnering with the community and inviting all of our community partners for the job fair."

"At our last job fair, we recruited anything from police officers, social workers, and, of course, nurses, we always need nurses. (There are) food service workers, housekeeping aides and dental assistant positions too. We had a wide variety of jobs available right here at the VA."

Rowan EDC Marketing Communications Manager Mollie Ruf said that more than 200 people attended the fair. ●

Central Avenue Revitalization GETS BIG INJECTION

By Susan Shinn Turner
photos by Chandler Inions

The year 2023 was a good one for Mayor Meredith Smith. She won a second term as the town's first female mayor, and she and Town Manager Michael Ambrose landed a $100,000 revitalization grant for South Central Avenue.

The two talked with Sen. Carl Ford and Rep. Kevin Crutchfield about what the town needed to help businesses stay downtown.

"We didn't know that Rep. Crutchfield had put in for us to get the grant," Smith says. "We are planning with the board to change up that area."

One improvement that's already taking place, aside from the grant, is replacing sidewalks there.

Smith envisions the improvements as a "Discover Central Avenue" concept.

"We don't really have a main street," she notes, "so Central Avenue serves as the town's main street."

One thing Smith wants to purchase with the grant is banners for South Central Avenue. The town has already upgraded its trashcans and replaced some lighting. Wayfinding is also a priority for the mayor.

"My biggest goal is to get a sign on the back side of Ryder Avenue, letting people know to turn into the business district, not cross over the railroad tracks," she said.

Smith is thrilled with the occupancy rate in the business district.

"In the last two years, every building has been full," she said.

A big hit has been Chuck's Hobby Depot, which has a large presence downtown. Willowbrook Grounds coffee shop and Fletcher and Gaines beauty salon — with about a dozen stylists — have also made their marks.

There's also Landis Creamery, Golden Rack clothing store, Black Crow household goods shop, Luke's Corner on Main Street for all your boot needs and Darling's art studio. ●

Novant Health Rowan Medical Center

612 Mocksville Avenue, Salisbury, NC 28144 | 704-210-5000 | www.novanthealth.org/rowan-medical-center

Novant Health Rowan Medical Center provides remarkable care for the entire family right in your backyard. As a leader in the health care community since 1936, we are a not-for-profit offering advanced treatments and comprehensive medical care for citizens of Rowan County and surrounding communities.

As our community has grown, so have we. Twelve years ago, we joined Novant Health, a collaboration which has enabled us to provide even more advanced and critical care to our community. In late 2017, Novant Health Med Flight launched their helicopter air transport service, which is based at Rowan Medical Center. This service connects patients to the critical care they need when every second counts.

Rowan Medical Center offers a variety of healthcare services — from primary care providers and specialty care clinics to imaging, wellness, and urgent care clinics with extended hours so that you can enjoy more of your life.

Rowan Medical Center is nationally accredited by the Joint Commission, the gold standard in healthcare accreditation. The hospital is nationally recognized for safety, quality and leading edge healthcare; which means world-class care for your family.

Supporting our community is about more than just providing high-quality medical care. It's reaching out, partnering and working together with schools, businesses, and civic groups to create a healthier community — together.

The newest addition to the Rowan Medical Center system is the Wallace Cancer Institute, a 34,000 square-foot facility was completed in the summer of 2020 and allows four cancer centers to be in one building. To learn more about the physicians, team members, services, and facilities, please visit novanthealth.org.

ROWAN-CABARRUS Prepares Rowan County's Workforce of the Future

When businesses such as Chewy, Eli Lilly and Macy's decide to move to Rowan and Cabarrus counties, Rowan-Cabarrus Community College has updated its programming to keep up with those evolving employment environments.

Recently, Rowan-Cabarrus received land from the Rowan County Board of Commissioners that will allow them to expand their truck driver program. The program expansion comes after companies such as Chewy and Chick-fil-A brought in jobs with distribution and manufacturing centers.

"With the 22 million square feet of speculative space under development and consideration along our section of I-85 here in Rowan County, we know those will likely be manufacturing and logistics facilities. Every one of them needs to have materials brought in and product they need sent out and so that traffic will only increase and the demand for drivers will increase as well," said Rowan-Cabarrus Community College Vice-President of Corporate & Continuing Education Craig Lamb.

During the meeting in which the commissioners voted to approve the land transfer, Rowan-Cabarrus President Carol Spalding took time to acknowledge the success that the truck-driving program has had in the county and elsewhere. Dr. Spalding said that the program has a waiting list of nearly 300 students and the College's truck-driving graduates have an average starting salary of $60,000.

The land transfer included around 25 acres between the College's North Campus in Salisbury and the Rowan County fairgrounds, which will be donated to the College. Spalding spoke at the meeting and said that the school plans to build a track specially made for larger vehicles. The school has been holding its driving programs in the West End Plaza parking lot.

Spalding and Lamb said that the school mainly plans to use the new land to assist in their truck driving program. They also plan to use it for training for emergency services drivers. Rowan-Cabarrus is currently the state's largest certifier of firefighter driver licenses, according to Lamb.

When Eli Lilly announced their plans in 2022 to come to Concord with a $1 billion investment and nearly 600 jobs, Rowan-Cabarrus joined the North Carolina Community College BioWork program. The College now offers a BioWork certification as part of that program, and Eli Lilly officials told Rowan-Cabarrus that they highly value applicants who can show that they have received that education.

"The BioWork program is one more critical piece as the College responds to industry needs and prepares the workforce of the future. We have programs in place to train employees for a variety of general manufacturing roles, and the BioWork program and other training initiatives are designed to meet the detailed needs of specific industries," Spalding said when the program was announced.

In July, Spalding sat down and talked with Kannapolis mayor Darrell Hinnant on the 20th anniversary of Pillwotex shutting down its facilities, which resulted in the largest one-day layoff in North Carolina's history. Spalding, Hinnant and Jeannie Moore, the former director of Corporate and Continuing Education for the college, spoke about what the College has done to help with the progress Kannapolis has made in recovering from the layoff.

"One of the first questions I hear when recruiting businesses to come here is, 'Do you have workers to fill the jobs?' I say, 'Yes, we have people ready to go to work, and if they need training, Rowan-Cabarrus Community College will train them.' Without that answer, we would not have the success we have," Hinnant said during the event.

Rowan-Cabarrus Community College's work in helping former Pillwotex workers with training and finding jobs earned the college an Outstanding Workforce Development Provider Award from the U.S. Department of Labor in 2005. ●

Southern Rowan offers numerous
LIFESTYLE AMENITIES

By Susan Shinn Turner

If you're interested in moving to the southern part of Rowan County, you will could hit a home run in Downtown Kannapolis.

Residential investment is part of a four-pronged approach to improving downtown Kannapolis, which also includes investment in retail, office, and hospitality by the city.

The city is entering phase three of a three-phase, 20-year master plan implemented in 2016, according to Mike Legg, longtime city manager. All told, the master plan will have garnered some $750 million in public and private investment by the time full buildout is completed.

"It's exciting to see these plans come to fruition," said Legg, who has served as city manager since 2004.

Assembling the master plan, he says, wasn't as cumbersome as you'd think: "It was focused on results, and how we facilitate private sector development. Where to put the ballpark was the earliest decision, and it was the best decision we made."

City council and staff toured a half-dozen ballparks on the East Coast, mostly patterning the downtown after Downtown Durham — even though Kannapolis has a much different feel than its larger counterpart.

Kannapolis was first municipality in the state to get a social district, as soon as the legislation passed, Legg says. "We have had zero problems with it."

After the ballpark — home to the Cannonballers — came the introduction of the live-work-play concept.

"Part of the issue for downtown was to create density to facilitate everything else," Legg said. "You need people living downtown."

Apartments, he explains, fit into a niche of affordable housing because they require no down payment or closing costs.

To complement Vida on South Main Street, Vida II — a smaller addition to those apartments — should be completed in 2024.

Pennant Square Townhomes off South Main Street has 127 units which are completely sold out.

"Those townhomes were a wild success, beyond anything we dreamed," Legg says, and provided opportunity for new home ownership.

Stadium Lofts, luxury apartments overlooking Atrium Health Ballpark, should open in early 2024. This is a mixed-use site, with the baseball team store and offices and Towel City Tavern on the lower floors.

"These will be premium prices because of the views and amenities," Legg points out.

Along with residential options the city has garnered investments from small businesses. Over 40 businesses have opened in the downtown. Shops, restaurants, a bakery, pub, cidery, brewery, are all open and drawing hundreds daily. Kannapolis was first municipality in the state to get a social district, as soon as the legislation passed, Legg says. “We have had zero problems with it.” The social district allows for people to stroll the area, or dine outside with an alcoholic beverage.

A thriving entertainment district is now coming to fruition with renovations to the historic Gem Theatre (a first run movie theatre) and the Swanee Theatre, a live music venue and other venues in the area.

The North Carolina Research Campus, one of the original anchors of the re-envisioned downtown, is stable, according to Legg.

“Obviously, we’d like to see it grow. About 600 people work there, but it’s a group of different entities all in one place. So it never shows up as a large employer.”

Elsewhere in Kannapolis, the Kannapolis Crossing/Overlook 85 can be found at exit 65. Kannapolis Crossing is a mixed-use project to include houses, restaurants, businesses, and offices. Overlook 85 is the industrial portion of this project, and project and will include 1.2 million square feet of industrial space. Lakeshore Corporate Park, also on I-85 at Exit 63, has just been completed and Chick-Fil-A Supply has announced they will be locating here.

“It’s a little overwhelming to see so much industrial growth all at once,” Legg said, “because there is always an alignment of our utilities capacity and need but we welcome the business growth.”

There are other corporate and industrial projects along the I-85 corridor. And there are other housing projects in the pipeline, Legg says.

“The housing and financial market is the only barrier to these projects getting the green light,” he says. “The wave of development from Charlotte is definitely hitting us, and we are fortunate to see that wave. Our goal is always to reduce the commuter rate, but we’re always going to have that because of our proximity to Charlotte.”

A hotel will be coming to downtown in 2024, while Legg notes that the public development of the plan is mostly complete.

“Our projections are playing out,” Legg said. “I couldn’t be more pleased. It’s rare in what we do for a community to see planning become a reality.”

Legg credits Mayor Darrell Hinnant and the city council for their hard work over the past eight years. Six of the seven council members — the mayor included — have served together since the master plan was approved.

“You’re going on good advice and solid information, but you have to make hard decisions,” Legg said of the council. “They did and it’s paying off. Their decisions were the right ones.”

He adds, “The stability of city council has been critical. It was a positive to have that experience and continuity.” ●

NEW DISTRIBUTION CENTER

bringing over 100 jobs, more to come in corporate park

By Robert Sullivan

photo submitted

A Chick-fil-A Supply distribution center will call Rowan County home after choosing to move into Kannapolis' Lakeshore Corporate Park. The decision came after the Rowan County Board of Commissioners and Kannapolis City Council offered incentive packages to the company, then codenamed Project Swarm.

The distribution center is expected to bring an investment of $58.3 million and 112 full-time jobs. The EDC noted that 85 of those jobs should be arriving in the first two years.

"The city of Kannapolis is excited to welcome Chick-fil-A Supply and their staff. With over 100 jobs, salaries above the county average and their substantial investment, the company will be a significant employer in our city and Rowan County. They have selected a beautiful premier location overlooking I-85 and Lake Fisher. It reflects the strong corporate presence for which they are known and is expected to make an immediate positive impact in our city. We are very pleased that they have selected Kannapolis as their new distribution center locale and thus are helping us continue the revitalization momentum and healthy economic job growth we are experiencing," said Kannapolis Mayor Darrell Hinnant.

The Lakeshore Corporate Park stands where the Kannapolis Intimidators ballpark used to stand before the team moved to its current location. The Chick-fil-A center will occupy a 128,000-square-foot building on the property.

The park, composed of three speculative buildings, was substantially completed in November. Building 1 was sold to Chick-fil-A Supply, while both Building 2 and Building 3 are still available for companies who wish to invest in the growing economy of Rowan County.

Building 2 is 294,500 square feet, and Building 3 is 279,000 square feet. The buildings offer a range of 32-to-36-foot clear heights, full-building circulation and 260-to-310-foot depth. The park also provides two ingress and egress points within the property, as well as 515 auto parking spaces and 76 full-size trailer parking stalls, according to the Stonemont Financial Group, a private investment firm that partnered with Charlotte-based firm Fortius Capital Partners to build the park.

"Demand for industrial space in the greater Charlotte market remains strong, with trends such as e-commerce expansion, manufacturing growth and convenient transportation access propelling the positive momentum. Lakeshore Corporate Park represents Stonemont's continued expansion into the East Coast/Mid-Atlantic regions due to the area's rapid growth and proximity to major transportation and port systems," said Stonemont in a press release.

Chick-fil-A is set to launch the new facility in 2024. This facility will handle key operations, from warehousing restaurant supplies to supplying deliveries and providing operational support, including customer service and administrative tasks. Information for those who want to look into the jobs that Chick-fil-A Supply offers can be found at www.cfa-supply.com.

"Chick-fil-A, a beloved American company and a name that resonates with so many choosing to establish their distribution center here, is a testament to Rowan County's growing appeal to major employers. The introduction of 112 jobs not only signifies robust economic growth but also promises stability and progress for our residents. It's an honor and a thrill to welcome such a significant investment from a brand everyone knows and loves to our county," said Rowan County Commissioner Greg Edds.

Additional partners included Choate Construction Company as the general contractor, Triad Design Group as the architect and engineer and Oak Engineering as the civil engineer. ●

Specialized childcare facility expands to second SALISBURY LOCATION

By Chandler Inions
photos by

The long-awaited new Partners In Learning facility in Salisbury officially opened in October.

The new facility, Partners In Learning at The Woods, is located at 1775 S. Martin Luther King Jr. Ave. Executive Director Norma Honeycutt described the culmination of a years-long journey as mixed emotionally.

"Working with all these people day in and day out, and all our volunteers, we are in touch constantly and have built such good friendships together," Honeycutt said. "The sweet part is we are opening the doors."

Partners In Learning has operated for several years at its current location near the Catawba College campus. The non-profit organization provides children and families with early education and comprehensive clinical services. Its inclusive services support children of all abilities, regardless of income.

The new center will package those offerings through various programs in one location, including additional infant toddler classrooms, Pre-K, after-school care, summer enrichment camps, mental health, developmental therapies and ABA therapy.

"We believe that early childhood education is essential for all children, and we are committed to providing high-quality, affordable care to all families," Honeycutt said.

With the expanded facility, the executive director expressed excitement about what that will mean for the Autism and mental health support services they provide.

"The biggest thing is the childcare side," Honeycutt said. "It's two-sided. The childcare side is going to allow us to expand our services to infants and toddlers where we are actually doubling our space (for that demographic)."

Honeycutt mentioned that the facility would also have a dedicated STEM (Science, technology, engineering and mathematics) room.

"We have never had that, so we will really be able to focus on those subjects," Honeycutt said.

They have made additional hires to account for the growth the facility is experiencing and the increased demand for its services.

"We just hired a second mental health counselor," Honeycutt said. "We have hired about six more staff members for our ABA therapy."

Up until now, four of those employees had been sharing the same offices.

"We are crammed into our current location," Honeycutt said.

It will also give families a place to meet physically.

"Right now, many of our meetings have had to go on Zoom because we have just not had the space, and now we will have the space," Honeycutt said.

Partners In Learning Board Chair Celia Jarrett explained that recognition of the growing need prompted the work to get out and involve the community.

"We knocked on many doors and were welcomed in at every step," Jarrett said. "I am grateful for this community, who chose to walk with us on this journey."

Similarly, the campaign chair Hen Henderlite, added, "Look at individuals and businesses in our community who have stepped up to the plate to be a part of Partners. Reaching out further, just the wonderful company that provides grants that have helped us to reach our goal in addition to our representatives in local and state government to help get our story out and increase our funding."

Henderlite said everyone having a piece of the pie is "great because those people will have a sense of ownership in Partners In Learning.

Partners In Learning is funded by various sources, including grants, donations and tuition fees. The center is also a member of the North Carolina Early Childhood Education Association and the National Association for the Education of Young Children.

Honeycutt said that the facility fulfilled the mission that the late Dr. Shirley Ritchie set out to accomplish when she brought Partners In Learning to the community.

"Dr. Ritchie told me it would be a diverse place where children with special needs could be integrated into the classroom with typical children," Honeycutt said. "She also said she wanted it affordable for all families of different income levels." ●

Honeycutt said she felt that Ritchie would be proud of the new facility and the direction the program is heading. With many to thank for the project, Honeycutt said a special thanks was due to Sherry Mason Brown.

"She is our volunteer designer and has spent hours making this place look amazing," Honeycutt said. "I can't wait for everyone to see her work."

The ribbon-cutting ceremony was open to the public and featured remarks from the center's board chair, staff and community partners. There will also be self-guided tours, a scavenger hunt and food trucks.

"In addition to our brick-and-mortar facility, our new campus will have a three-acre Adventure Forest, which is still under construction," Honeycutt said. "This outdoor experience expands our space for children to learn, grow and heal. Once completed, there will be another ribbon cutting to celebrate this amazing area."

ROWAN CHAMBER YOUTH LEADERSHIP PROGRAM to Launch in Fall 2024

photos submitted

The Rowan Chamber of Commerce will launch a new Youth Leadership program in the Fall of 2024. The Chamber has had the prestigious Leadership Rowan program for over 30 years and will be building on that experience for a high school level leadership development program. It will be targeted for high school juniors seeking to acquire real-world skills and get more involved with their home town.

The Chamber has numerous programs that target Young Professionals, Minority Business Council, Women in Business and other business owners for professional development and networking events. Now, the Chamber is organizing a special initiative geared towards a younger demographic to encourage them to stay in Rowan County .

"The Youth Leadership Program will follow along with what our adult program looks like," Chamber Vice President of Business Development Erica Church said. "Our goal of this is to reinforce the idea that students will be more willing to help their hometowns or come back to work in Rowan after graduation if we introduce them to these contacts that are in the community."

Church says the program will meet once a month for nine months starting in August 2024 and have their graduation in April 2025. Leadership Rowan Steering Committee Chair Nick Means (F & M Bank) conducted focus groups with high school students to gather their feedback. Means and the Youth Leadership Committee are developing the program to meet the needs of the students.

"The Chamber Board voted the Youth Leadership as one of our top priorities for 2024. Rowan-Salisbury School system has been very supportive of the project and knows the need for the connection between the business community and our youth in order to give them the skills that they need and the contacts that they need to move on to that next level," Church said.

Each day will have a specific theme. The first day will consist of an introduction, team building quality of life seminar. Then in the coming months, they will have sessions on different subjects like criminal justice, public education, human needs, government, business and economy, and communications before their graduation. Rowan-Salisbury Schools have agreed to provide transportation for the students.

Church estimates only 20-25 members will be selected based off of certain criteria and recommendations from teachers and schools to identify students who would be ideal candidates for the program.

"There's going to be a pretty heavy learning curve as far as getting it up and off the ground. So, I think we would want to keep the first class smaller," Church said.

Church said the program will be completely free for the students, but that means the chamber has extra work to do so that they can pay for all of the expenditures. Church advised funding should be easier going after the first successful year.

"We didn't want there to be any concerns from the students about ability to pay for the program. In order to do that, we just have to make sure we have all of our financing in place through grants and sponsorships to make sure the program is sustainable," Church said.

"With any new program that you launch, we want to get the first year under our belt to work out all the kinks, we want it to be a sustainable program for the youth in our community, to give them that experience with contacts and experience in a leadership role from each of their various schools. This will be a good opportunity for them to come together and collaborate and share ideas," Church said.

Seeing it through

Cora Greene turns stained-glass

PASSION

INTO PROFESSION

By Chandler Inions
photos by

Cora Greene retired from a 30-year career at Novant Health Rowan Medical Center in March 2023, but she didn't sit still long.

Greene turned her love of working with stained glass into Salisbury's latest downtown business — Glass Ingenuity.

Greene said she had a vision of the store in the works for a little while.

"I started envisioning the idea probably a year before I retired," Greene said. "Bill (husband) has certainly pushed me to be a visionary and to take the risk and do it."

Then, the planning began.

"I had to think about wholesale accounts for the supplies I am selling," Greene said. "I have learned so much because I did not know how to run a business.

"When I was at the hospital, you had someone from marketing, someone from supply chain, so they would do all that kind of work. Now, I had to do everything to put this together. It was really cool, and I grew a lot."

Greene's journey has been aided along the way. One fellow downtown business owner was particularly motivating.

"Cheryl Goins of Pottery 101 has been phenomenal," Greene said. "I have been talking with her about this for two years, probably. She gave me a lot of good advice, and she kind of shared what she does, but she said to make it your own. Think about it from your perspective."

Trying something new

Greene stumbled upon stained glass a decade and a half ago when she and a friend attended a workshop.

"My kids were younger, but it felt like all I was doing was taking care of my family, and I wanted something for me," Greene said. "I signed up for a class with a friend."

While her friend did not take a shine to stained glass, Greene fell in love.

"I kept taking classes for a long time, and eventually, I just bought my own equipment," Greene said. "I dabbled in it for a long time, and it became one of my outlets when I was not working."

Greene is offering Glass Ingenuity patrons the same glimpse that first ignited her passion.

"That's why I am doing the workshops," Greene said. "The perfect example is my friend and I when we went together to the class."

At Glass Ingenuity, Greene will be offering single workshops as well as extended weeks-long classes.

"Rather than having a huge commitment, like eight weeks for a beginning class, do a two-hour class where you get parts of it, and you leave with a little suncatcher at the end," Green said. "I felt like that would be a good way to introduce it to folks, and then they could decide if they want to sign up for a beginners class."

Greene said that she was trying to tailor her workshops toward the season.

"We just did leaves and are going to do Christmas ornaments next," Greene said. "We will probably do flowers in the spring."

Workshops are $65, which includes all the materials.

"The full 8-week classes for beginners will be $285," Greene said. "That will include all the supplies. They will leave with a little suncatcher and then a panel."

On Thursday, Jourdan Hamme was strolling through downtown with her mother when they were drawn into Glass Ingenuity by the work hanging in the window.

"Seeing all the panels of glass reminds me of art class," Hamme said. "I think of when I had to make a project for Christmas, and it ended up being my mom's earrings.

"It's a little cliché to say, but the (sun)light, as you can see right now, hit the colors perfectly, and it led me to the door, and I walked in."

While she has worked with numerous mediums, stained glass stood out to Hamme as a teenager.

"It was the edge factor of being in high school and getting to play with glass," Hamme said. "I feel like glass is a fundamental part (of life), kind of like pottery. It is something we take for granted. You have glasses in your cabinet, but you don't really consider someone made (them). I feel like glass is one of those things we take for granted but always admire from afar."

Hamme said she would like to take a workshop at Greene's store.

In addition to the workshops, Greene plans to showcase local stained-glass artists.

"We are going to have a gallery component," Greene said. "It's going to be more towards the front."

Do-it-yourselfers can find all the materials they need to work at home as well.

"You won't find this type of glass at Hobby Lobby," Greene said of her selection.

Glass Ingenuity is located at the corner of South Main Street and East Fisher Street in downtown Salisbury.

It is open Tuesday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Friday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. ●

Relocating^{to} ROWAN COUNTY

Rowan County has it all — spacious farms, historic homes with plenty of charm, new neighborhoods with all the amenities.

Your Chamber Business Directory lists local real estate agencies who will be happy to assist you in finding your dream home.

For now, here are a few simple trips you can make by car or on foot to start learning about Rowan’s communities.

Farms and fields abound in and around Rockwell and Cleveland as well as to the north near the Woodleaf community.

Try this excursion: from Salisbury, take Statesville Boulevard (U.S. 70) west toward Cleveland. Turn left onto NC 801 South and go south to Sherrill’s Ford Road. Turn left there to head back toward Salisbury. This loop takes you through some of Rowan’s prime farm country.

High Rock Lake is a reservoir lake located in Davidson and Rowan counties of North Carolina, serving as a boundary between them. It is a reservoir for hydroelectric power generation. It is the northernmost of the Uwharrie Lakes and the second largest lake in North Carolina behind Lake Norman. Its water surface covers 15,180 acres (61 km2) and there are 365 miles (587 km) of shoreline. It begins at the confluence of the Yadkin River and the South Yadkin River. The lake’s name is derived from neighboring “High Rock Mountain”, the tallest mountain in the Uwharrie Mountains. High Rock Lake is currently managed and operated by the Eagle Creek Renewable Energy.

History is alive in Salisbury’s downtown historic district. Homes from the 19th and early 20th centuries, many with a story to tell, line the streets within a block or two of the city center.

From the intersection of Main and Innes, take West Innes Street past the Rowan County offices. Go three blocks, then turn left onto South Ellis Street. Make your way down this street, then turn left on West Monroe Street. At the next block, turn left onto South Fulton Street to make your way back to Innes Street.

These streets close to Main Street feature historic homes as well as more recent houses with character.

Find your hometown

Most of Rowan’s smaller municipalities retain a small-town character — local businesses, close-knit neighborhoods and plenty of smiling faces. Most of what you’ve heard about “Southern hospitality” is true and you can expect to get smiles and waves as you introduce yourself to the locals.

Every town has something different to offer, as well as a blend of old and new homes and neighborhoods. Pick a corner of the Rowan County map and go exploring. You just might find your new friends and neighbors waiting for you there.

Enjoy city lights

Several buildings on Main Street and within one or two blocks of it have been refurbished with apartments or lofts on their upper floors, perfect for those who want to be a short walk from everything. Some newer buildings also feature condos for sale.

There’s no need to drive to see the possibilities — just find a convenient parking spot and take a walk down South Main Street from the center of town.

“Get in the Game!”

Campaign

The Chamber’s “Get in the Game!” Campaign brought in the most New Members in campaign history with 59 new members vs. a goal of 30. Please help us congratulate our top volunteers!

- Campaign Chair: Terry Osborne, Rowan Kannapolis ABC Board
- Top Team: Catawba College
- Top Producers:
 1. Dr. Christine Lynn, Catawba College
 2. Terry Osborne, Rowan Kannapolis ABC Board
 3. Elia Gegorek, Gegorek & Associates Realty, LLC

The Rowan Chamber of Commerce is a private not-for-profit business advocacy organization. The Chamber has an active Board of Directors, volunteers, and staff to assist the business community. It was started in 1925 and has accomplished a great deal in its nearly 100-year history. Significant accomplishments include Yadkin River Bridge; I-85 improvements and utility connections; Mid-Carolina Airport expansion; and the development of the Paul E. Fisher Gateway Building.

The Chamber has over 800 members, representing nearly 20,000 employees in Rowan County and the surrounding area. Benefits include business advocacy, workforce development/talent attraction, community development, professional development, membership directory, relocation packets, brochure racks, ribbon cuttings, networking programs, business referrals, exposure for member firms and much more.

Some of the more popular programs are: Leadership Rowan, Power in Partnership breakfast meetings, Business After Hours mixers, Ambassadors, Candidate Forums, Washington, D.C. trip; Raleigh trips; Women in Business, Minority Business Council, Young Professional, Annual Meeting and Dragon Boat Festival.

For more information contact the Chamber at 704.633.4221 or info@rowan-chamber.com or www.rowanchamber.com or 204 E. Innes St., Salisbury, NC 28144

Simplify Your Life, Enhance Your Lifestyle.

TRINITY OAKS

Cottages | Apartments
Assisted Living | Health & Rehab | Memory Care

At Trinity Oaks, we offer a carefree lifestyle that is catered to you. Between our community fitness center, indoor heated pool & spa, card & game room, and library – along with transportation to a variety off-site activities – there is never a dull moment. The minute you walk in, you'll be captivated by the warmth and friendliness that characterize this vibrant, full-service retirement living community.

Our sizable campus is located in Salisbury, a welcoming community of 34,000 with a beautiful downtown historic district. With cultural opportunities unparalleled in a town its size – including a symphony orchestra and several award-winning community theaters – Salisbury offers the best of small-town living.

Come discover for yourself. Trinity Oaks will change the way you think about senior living.
